

our patch of earth
go green and get creative

Our Patch of Earth is a new Investigate Learning team project which will be based at the Museum of Lincolnshire Life in early 2022. The theme of the project is linked to environmental responsibility, wellbeing and community. We aim to explore a range of creative ideas that will influence the development of a new museum 'secret' garden.

The project links to the museum site, it's collections and responds to the history of Lincolnshire and it's environment and countryside during the Victorian era. We will focus for example upon gardening, agriculture, social history, folklore and herbal medicine.

Bring your ideas as we are wanting this project to evolve and take on a life of it's own which is very exciting!!

For schools interested in being involved there will be a variety of ways that could happen as there will be:

new workshops linked to Arts Award

an Artist in residence who will link to school visits options to focus upon the Victorian era or wartime related topics option to be involved in our environmental themed exhibition support the 'mood board' of ideas for the future development of our garden in a range of creative ways

Getting involved can take place in a range of ways from emailing us, booking on workshops, sharing project ideas, creating projects that can link to the garden design and environmental responsibility themes or new ways we haven't even thought of yet! We are very excited to have your ideas and input!
